

GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
Department of Banking and Financial Institutions

Junior Super Savers Club

The Junior Super Savers Club (“JS$C”) is a savings program that was established by the Department of Banking and Financial Institutions (“DBFI”), the District of Columbia Public Schools and area banks. DBFI and area banks work in partnership with local elementary schools and the Mayor’s Transformation Schools as Neighborhood Places financial education initiative to provide initial deposits for program participants. The JS$C teaches money management and allows students to save for their future by opening interest-bearing savings accounts and waiving service fees until the student reaches the age 18. In addition, students will receive information concerning career options in the financial services industry. The JS$C program will be offered at the following schools:
